Infinity Looping G019 MV

This year, Pierre Kunz is launching a new watchmaking concept: a new approach to reading the time teamed with a resolutely innovative style.

The understated dial displays part of this astonishing complication, the outcome of high tech research combined with true design flair.

A 44 mm diameter case houses a remarkable mechanism which makes the hours and minutes whirl like a rose window of time on a galvanic dial with mat-grained applied chapters.

Classic version in grey gold or 5N red gold, with matching gadrooned Barenia calfskin strap reminiscent of American automobile leather from the fifties.

Or black steel sports version equipped with a crown protector, eye-catching tone on tone through which the outline of the hours is revealed in harmony with the double intersecting over stitching of the strap.

After a second highly original version of this looping, Pierre Kunz has taken a step further with variations on turns and complications.

The Pierre Kunz logo completes a flying full turn in 60 seconds thanks to the gravitation of a satellite pinion which moves around a fixed rack.

The master watchmaker intensifies his individuality with a single hand indicating the hours and minutes at a pace which must surely make heads turn.

Pierre Kunz orchestrates a frenzied rhythm based on the infinite looping principle.
